

Edward J. Shahady, MD Endowment in Family Medicine Residency Education

Dr. Edward J. Shahady served as Chair of the UNC Department of Family Medicine from 1976 until 1986. Under his leadership the relatively new department dramatically expanded its impact on the discipline of Family Medicine and North Carolina. This included visionary new programs in medical student, resident, and faculty development education while establishing a strong clinical enterprise to support its educational and research missions. Ed established the statewide Department of Family Medicine linking residencies across the state to increase collaboration and impact. One of Dr. Shahady’s greatest passions is the training and empowering of resident physicians to be outstanding full-scope Family Physicians. His work before, during, and after his service as chair is deserving of recognition, and his passion should carry on with this fund.

The Edward J. Shahady, MD Endowment in Family Medicine Residency Education will support opportunities of excellence and leadership for Family Medicine Residents and Family Medicine Residency education. The Endowment will honor Dr. Shahady’s life-long commitment to ensuring the next generation of Family Medicine Physicians are prepared to deliver exceptional care to their patients. The fund will support educational opportunities, travel to conferences, appropriate leveraging of new technology, research opportunities and activities which enhance the care of underserved patients and those with chronic conditions.
